

Nexus Global Cautious Institutional Distribution Class

FACTSHEET - October 2025

Strategy Objective

The Nexus Cautious Portfolio is an actively managed, globally diversified, multi-asset class fund. The aim is capital protection and modest capital appreciation. The Cautious Portfolio is intended to create a lower-risk investment opportunity that delivers an attractive return.

Investment Process

The Nexus Global Cautious Portfolio is a diversified and liquid portfolio of developed market government, supranational and investment grade corporate bonds combined with a limited allocation to global equities. It is not constrained by one particular investment style such as growth or value, nor is it constrained by a benchmark. The portfolio will seek to provide an attractive level of income without taking undue levels of credit risk. The equity allocation in the portfolio will offer a combination of attractive dividends and capital growth by investing in a selection of large cap, developed market equities. The Nexus Global Cautious Portfolio is for the investor who seeks attractive income and the potential for modest capital appreciation with lower volatility than the Nexus Dynamic or Nexus Solutions Portfolios.

Market Commentary

October delivered another strong month for risk assets, with most global equity markets posting gains, led by the tech-heavy U.S. indices. Fixed income also performed well as investors largely ignored France's downgrade, focusing instead on expectations of further rate cuts by the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of England.

The overall environment remains favourable for risk assets, even as financial media highlight this time of year as seasonally weak, suggesting an imminent correction. The Federal Reserve cut rates by another 25 basis points and announced that they would end their balance sheet reduction (QT) on December 1st. Meanwhile, oil prices remain subdued around the $60-65 per barrel level and energy prices in Europe are back to levels that prevailed before the Russian invasion of Ukraine. This represents a significant boost to businesses and households across Europe.

Despite some recent softening in the U.S. labour market, retail sales remain healthy and business investment (driven by AI capex) remains strong. Fiscal policy is still loose, which is a double-edged sword for some like the U.S. and France where debt concerns are growing. In Europe, increased defence spending, particularly in Germany, is boosting activity. At the same time, China is pursuing a powerful combination of an ultra-loose monetary stance and significant deficit spending. President Trump has eased trade tensions by agreeing a truce with China following a period of sharp exchanges. However, tariff levels remain elevated, and the administration views the revenue raised as a key instrument to managing the deficit.

AI-related capital expenditure is expected to keep growing and we continue to have exposure in that space. Similarly, we expect sustained demand for gold, silver, copper and other metals, supporting continued strong performance from our mining holdings. European defence spending is in the early stages of ramping up, and we believe our defence positions will continue to benefit from this emerging secular trend. Despite a recent modest rebound in the U.S. dollar, we continue to favour stocks outside the U.S. and hold fewer U.S. dollar-denominated holdings than we have in the past.
